

Question 13

If two vectors are equal, what can you say about their components? What can you say about their magnitudes? What can you say about their directions?

Solution

If two vectors are equal, then their components are equal, their magnitudes are equal, and their directions are equal.