

Question 20

If two vectors have the same magnitude, do their components have to be the same?

Solution

No, their respective components don't have to be the same.