Exercise 101

For the following exercises, determine whether the statement is true or false. Explain why.

A function of the form $f(x) = x^b$, where b is a real valued constant, is an exponential function.

Solution

False, the variable x has to be in the exponent for $f(x)$ to be an exponential function.